About the series

The Studies in Applied Economics series is under the general direction of Professor Steve H. Hanke, Co-Director of the Institute for Applied Economics, Global Health and Study of Business Enterprise (hanke@jhu.edu).

This working paper is one in a series on currency boards. The currency board working papers will fill gaps in the history, statistics, and scholarship of the subject. The authors are mainly students at The Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. Some performed their work as research assistants at the Institute.

About the authors

Rahee Jung (rjung4@jhu.edu) is a recent graduate from The Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, majoring in economics and international studies. She contributed to the research for this working paper while serving as a summer and fall research assistant at the Institute for Applied Economics, Global Health, and Study of Business Enterprise.

Demilade Obayomi (dobayom1@jhu.edu) is a junior at The Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore majoring in mechanical engineering. He contributed to the research for this working paper while serving as a summer research assistant at the Institute for Applied Economics, Global Health, and Study of Business Enterprise. He will graduate in May 2015.

This paper was written as a partial fulfillment for the course “Problems in Applied Economics,” which was directed by Prof. Steve H. Hanke. We thank Kurt Schuler and Nicholas Krus for advice.

Summary

We provide a guide to a digital archive containing thousands of pages of primary source material on currency board systems. The material consists mainly of currency board annual reports and financial statements published in government gazettes. The archive is available on the Web site of the Institute for Applied Economics, Global Health and Study of Business Enterprise. We organized material collected by other Johns Hopkins University students, converted digital photographs into PDF files, and catalogued the material. This guide will be updated as needed.

1. Introduction

Purpose

Under the guidance of Professor Steve H. Hanke and Kurt Schuler, students at The Johns Hopkins University have photographed thousands of pages of primary source material on currency board systems. The material includes currency board annual reports, abbreviated monthly or quarterly financial statements, government gazettes, statistical abstracts, annual reports of government operations, and other publications. The material comes from libraries all over the world. Many students have contributed; Nicholas Krus has collected the largest share. Students have also searched for material that is already available on the Internet.

We converted digital photographs into PDF files and joined individual photographs into larger files, each file containing all or part of a single issue of a single publication. This working paper is a guide to our filing system for the digital archive. It may be updated later as more material accumulates. The primary purpose of the paper is to expedite the process of searching for and accessing documents within the database.

Following a few pages of introductory remarks, the paper consists of three major sections:

- the Bibliography;
- the Digital Archive;
- the Copyright section.

Procedure for naming documents

We started with images in JPEG format already organized according to country by students in the previous stages of the research. We converted the individual images to PDF format, collated images belonging to the same document, and named each document using a standard format. In its most basic form, the format is:

Name of Country/Type of Report/Title of Document

Each slash represents a subfolder.

Name of Country refers to the country, protectorate or region that the documents within the subfolders provide information on. We used historic names even in cases where they are no longer used, such as “Gold Coast” for present-day Ghana. In all cases, the formal title of the document was the source for the name of the country.

Type of Report gives the general description of reports that are enclosed within its subfolders. Types of reports include annual reports of currency boards, annual reports of colonial and independent governments, and government gazettes.

Name of Document is an abridged title of the document. The abridged titles follow the standard format Year, Type of Report. For example, the name of a document could be 1965 Annual Report or 1965 Colonial Report. This makes it easier to find documents within the database without knowing the formal title of the document. Some formal titles varied over time, and, as users of library catalogs are aware, changes in titles sometimes make it harder to find successive number of serials because their listings are split up.

The Bibliography

As its name implies, the Bibliography is a reference document that contains every document available in the database according to its formal title. None of the more popular methods of writing bibliographies have been intentionally applied in the Bibliography. Rather, a standardized format that enhances the Bibliography's usefulness to researchers was designed and applied. The Bibliography is separated into sections that are arranged in alphabetical order according to Name of Country. The rules that applied to Name of Country as described in "Organizing the Data" apply here as well. The format in Bibliography is as follows:

Name of Country

Author (where applicable).

Formal Title of Document; Publisher

Digital Location

Copyright Information

Additional Notes

Author: Where explicitly stated, the name of the author or authorizing body was included when writing the bibliographical entry of government published sources of currency board information. For non-government published sources, the name of the author is always included.

Formal Title of Document: This is the title indicated on the cover page of the report or book.

Publisher: The name of the publisher was in most cases available on the cover page of the report. When the publisher could not be determined from the images in the database, this was indicated in the bibliographical entry

Digital Location: The digital location provides the link between Bibliography and Digital Archive. It is simply an abbreviated version of the digital address that is presented for the very same document in Digital Archive.

Copyright Information: The copyright status of every document in the archive is stated in this section. Documents that are still under Copyright will not be posted but will still be included in Bibliography. Researchers in need of such documents should contact the Institute for Applied Economics, Global Health, and Study of Business Enterprise. The Appendix summarizes the copyright laws applying to documents in the archive, providing digital links where available.

Additional Notes: Additional information about a particular document or book to explain special circumstances.

As with the Digital Archive, the sheer number of documents in the database would make searching for any one title tedious. Similarly, we have used formats that abbreviate the length of the Bibliography and that should enhance its capacity as a reference document. The formatting is best seen with an example of a typical entry in the Bibliography:

BURMA

Ministry of National Planning, Central Statistical Office. Quarterly Bulletin of Statistics ... (First, Second, Third, Fourth) Quarter ... (1951, 1952).

The Superintendent, Government Printing and Stationery, Burma.

Located in Burma Quarterly Bulletins of Statistics / 1951-1952 Quarterly Bulletins

Copyright protection has expired for all documents.

The portion of the bibliographical entry highlighted in grey above represents the titles of the documents that this entry references. The portion of the title that is not included in parentheses is common to all the documents in the series. The ellipses indicate that there are multiple documents from which the researcher can pick from; the options being contained in the parentheses. To clarify, the highlighted portion above represents every issue of the Burma Quarterly Bulletin of Statistics from the first quarter of 1951 to the fourth quarter of 1952, eight issues in all.

The Digital Archive

The Digital Archive provides users of the database with the digital address of every file located in the database, using the basic format where there is only one document within the Type of Report subfolder or the extensive format where there are multiple reports from a particular library from a specific period. One thing to note here is that in Digital Archive, wherever the extensive format is used, Name of Document is always omitted. If this were not the case, the number of entries in the Digital Archive would easily reach ten times the current number, defeating the purpose of creating the Digital Archive. Every entry within the Digital Archive takes the following form:

Name of Country

Digital Address (Basic/Extensive Format)

Source (Library where original source was photographed)

Notes on the documents specified by this digital address

Any given country will have multiple digital addresses associated with it depending on the number of libraries from which original sources were photographed and the time period (s) covered by the original sources obtained in the libraries. The libraries from which the original sources were obtained are listed below are as follows:

- ANL: Australian National Library, Canberra
- Cambridge: Cambridge University Library, Cambridge
- FED: Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, Research Library, Washington
- Guild: Guildhall Library, London
- IL: Johns Hopkins University Library, Baltimore (interlibrary loan)
- IMF: Joint Bank-Fund Library (World Bank and IMF), Washington
- JHU: Johns Hopkins University Library, Baltimore
- LOC: Library of Congress, Washington
- LSE: London School of Economics, London
- NBK: National Bank of Kuwait, Kuwait City
- PP: British Parliamentary Papers, online (not posted; see remarks below on copyright)
- Senate: Senate House Libraries, University of London, London
- SOAS: School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, London

Here is an example of a typical entry in the digital archive:

BRITISH GUIANA

British Guiana/British Guiana Colonial Reports/1914-1918 British Guiana Colonial Reports

Copyright law applying to the underlying material in the Digital Archive

The last section of this paper contains citations to and quotations from the applicable copyright laws, mainly as of late 2012, of many places of publication for material in the digital archive. The section therefore serves as a basis for asserting the legality of posting certain material from the archive on the Internet.

Our main source of information on copyright was the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO). We consulted its Wipolex database (<http://www.wipo.int/wipolex/en/>).

The applicable copyright laws are those of the places of publication, which in many cases are not the places that had the currency board systems concerned. Many countries that have had currency boards were British colonies at the time. Reports by the currency boards and the colonial governments were often published in London instead of locally. The applicable copyright law in such cases is therefore British law, which provides for a 50-year copyright in most cases of works produced by the government and published commercially. Some former colonies have imitated Britain in their rules about government copyright, while others have established longer or shorter copyright periods. For a number of countries, official reports were initially published in London and later transferred to local publication. The annual reports of the East African Currency Board, for instance, fall partly under British copyright law and partly under Kenyan copyright law.

Copyright applies for a number of years after publication. Reports are often not published until a year or even two years after the year they cover. Accordingly, in 2013, for countries that extend copyright for 50 years, annual reports for 1961 will typically be out of copyright because they were published in 1962, whereas annual reports for 1962 will typically still be under copyright until the end of 2013 because they were published in 1963.

Responsibility for ensuring that posted material is out of copyright or otherwise eligible for posting rests with Professor Steve H. Hanke. Copyright holders who assert that posted material infringes on copyright and should be taken down should contact him (hanke@jhu.edu). Please specify precisely the material in question, and provide both the applicable quotation from the legal text under which you assert copyright and an exact citation (if at all possible, a hyperlink). The project wishes to post only material that is legally permissible and will correct any posting of impermissible material.

Many British colonial reports are available through the Chadwyck-Healey House of Commons Parliamentary Papers database (<http://parlipapers.chadwyck.co.uk/marketing/index.jsp>). The underlying reports older than 50 years are out of copyright, but the electronic reproductions of them are copyrighted. The Chadwyck-Healey database is a fee-based service. Students involved in gathering source material on currency boards examined the database, because it is the most convenient way to find the reports, but reports from the database will not be posted. Google Books (<http://books.google.com/>) and the Internet Archive (<http://www.archive.org>) contain copies of many British colonial reports for free.

Copyright and citation of photographs and files from the Digital Archive

Although the underlying documents posted online in the Digital Archive are out of copyright or otherwise eligible for posting, the photographs of the documents taken by students for this project, which we collated into files, are copyrighted by the Institute for Applied Economics, Global Health and Study of Business Enterprise. The photographs may be reproduced provided that no fee is charged and proper credit to the source is given. The suggested citation is

4. Copyright summary

For the convenience of readers wishing to ascertain the copyright law applying to material in the digital archive, we offer citations for many countries. We list the United Kingdom first because it has been the leading place of publication for material in the archives, then we list other countries in alphabetical order according to their current names, with former names in parentheses.

United Kingdom

Summary: For documents of the type in the Digital Archive, which are predominantly official documents that were offered for sale or published for Parliament, copyright expires at the end of the calendar year 50 years after publication. For works by individual authors, copyright expires at the end of the calendar year 70 years after the author's death.

Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988

[Section] 163 Crown copyright.

(1) Where a work is made by Her Majesty or by an officer or servant of the Crown in the course of his duties—

(a) the work qualifies for Copyright notwithstanding section 153(1) (ordinary requirement as to qualification for Copyright), and

(b) Her Majesty is the first owner of any copyright in the work.

(1A) [repealed].

(2) Copyright in such a work is referred to in this Part as “Crown copyright”, notwithstanding that it may be, or have been, assigned to another person.

(3) Crown copyright in a literary, dramatic, musical or artistic work continues to subsist—

(a) until the end of the period of 125 years from the end of the calendar year in which the work was made, or

(b) if the work is published commercially before the end of the period of 75 years from the end of the calendar year in which it was made, until the end of the period of 50 years from the end of the calendar year in which it was first so published.

(4) In the case of a work of joint authorship where one or more but not all of the authors are persons falling within subsection (1), this section applies only in relation to those authors and the copyright subsisting by virtue of their contribution to the work.

(5) Except as mentioned above, and subject to any express exclusion elsewhere in this Part, the provisions of this Part apply in relation to Crown copyright as to other copyright.

(6) This section does not apply to a work if, or to the extent that, Parliamentary copyright subsists in the work (see sections 165 to 166D).

[Section 164 omitted]

[Section] 165 Parliamentary copyright.

(1) Where a work is made by or under the direction or control of the House of Commons or the House of Lords—

(a) the work qualifies for Copyright notwithstanding section 153(1) (ordinary requirement as to qualification for Copyright), and

(b) the House by whom, or under whose direction or control, the work is made is the first owner of any copyright in the work, and if the work is made by or under the direction or control of both Houses, the two Houses are joint first owners of copyright.

(2) Copyright in such a work is referred to in this Part as “Parliamentary copyright”, notwithstanding that it may be, or have been, assigned to another person.

(3) Parliamentary copyright in a literary, dramatic, musical or artistic work continues to subsist until the end of the period of 50 years from the end of the calendar year in which the work was made.

(4) For the purposes of this section, works made by or under the direction or control of the House of Commons or the House of Lords include—

(a) any work made by an officer or employee of that House in the course of his duties, and

(b) any sound recording, film or live broadcast of the proceedings of that House; but a work shall not be regarded as made by or under the direction or control of either House by reason only of its being commissioned by or on behalf of that House.

(5) In the case of a work of joint authorship where one or more but not all of the authors are acting on behalf of, or under the direction or control of, the House of Commons or the House of Lords, this section applies only in relation to those authors and the copyright subsisting by virtue of their contribution to the work.

(6) Except as mentioned above, and subject to any express exclusion elsewhere in this Part, the provisions of this Part apply in relation to Parliamentary copyright as to other copyright.

(7) The provisions of this section also apply, subject to any exceptions or modifications specified by Order in Council, to works made by or under the direction or control of any other legislative body of a country to which this Part extends; and references in this Part to “Parliamentary copyright” shall be construed accordingly.

(8) A statutory instrument containing an Order in Council under subsection (7) shall be subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament.
